

Editorial

ARBS Annual Review of Biomedical Sciences is an international journal that covers biomedical topic concerning both human and non-human subjects. Editorial decisions are made in Brazil, a convenient fact in light of our upcoming conference on Paracoccidioidomycosis, one of the most important systemic mycoses in Latin America.

We are proud to have the opportunity to publish this material from the VIII INTERNATIONAL MEETING ON PARACOCIDIOIDOMYCOSIS, in this case summaries - and not our usual form of review articles. This exception was made to propagate knowledge of a regional problem to the international scientific community. We believe this initiative will impart a sense of the importance of Paracoccidioidomycosis in terms of basic research with comparative approach in regions where this mycosis is not endemic.

Gilson L. Volpato
Editor-in-Chief of ARBS